

A practical approach to serious infections in children

8th-10th February 2018,

Reykjavík, Iceland

This course is aimed at those who have to recognize and manage children with serious infections. This includes pediatric trainees, emergency medicine doctors, general pediatricians and those with a specialist interest in infections in children. The course uses highly interactive small group workshops, with short lectures to emphasize core factual knowledge. Integrated with this there is the opportunity to see the natural beauty of Iceland, and maybe even the Northern Lights. The course is now in its fourth year, and has received glowing feedback from previous delegates.

Program and registration: <https://icelandcourse.cpreykjavik.is/>

Book soon because places are strictly limited and Early Bird discounts are only available until 15th December 2017.

Please forward details of this fabulous ESPID-sponsored course to your colleagues, trainees, and contacts around the world.

We very much hope to see you in Reykjavík!

Ásgeir, Pablo, Jethro, Aubrey, Sanjay & Valtyr